The sea highway between France and Spain will be opened in September.

The first sea highway between France and Spain will be opened in September between the ports of Nantes-Saint Nazaire (Loire-Atlantique department, north) and Gijon (Asturias) to unblock the road and reduce environmental impact, was announced on Thursday. "The official opening of the first sea highway between France and Spain will be opened next September," according to a press note by the French company Louis Dreyfus. A spokesman said later that it will be exactly during the "first week" of September.
